

Ex-councillor avoids prison for sick porn

Former council chairman possessed extreme images of child abuse and bestiality

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FORMER Harlow Council chairman Ian Jackson has been sentenced for possessing images of child abuse and bestiality.

The 64-year-old, of Green Hills, was sentenced to eight months imprisonment, suspended for two years, after pleading guilty to three charges last month.

Between January 2012 and December 2015 Jackson downloaded four indecent category A and four category B still images of children, contrary to the Protection of Children Act 1978.

In the same period he was found to possess 110 extreme pornographic images, including animal porn, contrary to the Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008. Police found the images on his computer in December 2015.

Jackson, a former Harlow Firebird Radio and Harlow Hospital Radio volunteer, was also given a sexual health prevention order for ten years at the sentencing at Chelmsford Crown Court on Thursday last week.

Judge Christopher Morgan said: "You have pleaded guilty to two offences of making indecent images of, four images of category

A and four of category B. You also admitted possession of 110 images of extreme pornography. When interviewed about these you chose to make no comment."

Perpetrating

He continued: "By viewing such images you are perpetrating the abuse of children."

The former Liberal Democrat councillor served in the ceremonial chairman position on the council in the mid-2000s. His portrait has been removed from the walls of the Civic Centre.

Before the sentence was read out Rakesh Sharma, mitigating, said Jackson had been forced to stop his voluntary work.

He told the judge: "This is a 64-year-old man of impeccable character who volunteers for Harlow Hospital Radio. He has had to give that up."

"He has suffered with depression, with that type of illness it does come and go. His wife and daughter are standing by and supporting him."

"This was a small number of images. These were downloaded some time ago, most recently over three and a half years ago."

"He had deleted all the images from his system and not returned to his old behaviour."

Jackson was also ordered to pay £220 in costs within six months.

After the sentencing the Star was approached by child abuse charity the NSPCC.

A spokesman said: "Jackson's vile internet searches resulted in him downloading pictures of the horrific abuse of children."

"Make no mistake, possessing images of child abuse is crime and helps to fuel a vile industry."

"Each time one of these graphic pictures is taken a child is left with untold physical and psychological damage that can last well into adulthood."

SENTENCED: Ian Jackson pleaded guilty last month

IN CRISIS: Council tax could be raised over two years to help pay for care for the elderly and vulnerable

Social care council tax rise a 'quick fix'

Politicians want overhaul of struggling system

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsexnews.co.uk

SENIOR politicians have called for a 'wholesale review' of the social care system after the Government announced council tax could rise by six per cent.

Councillor David Finch, the leader of Essex County Council, said raising council tax was a short-term fix and would put extra pressure on struggling families in the county.

Communities secretary Sajid Javid confirmed on Thursday authorities will be allowed to raise council tax by six per cent over two years – capped at three per cent per year – to pay for social care.

Mr Finch said: "I'm pleased the Government has finally woken up to the fact that social care funding is completely unsustainable. However, relaxing the cap on the social care precept for two years only provides short-term help, and places an extra burden on Essex families who are just about managing to get by.

"It will not address the £38million social care funding shortfall Essex will be facing in the next financial year, which is why plans to allow local councils to use money from the New Homes Bonus scheme to plug the funding gap are encouraging.

"There needs to be a wholesale review of the system. Having lobbied hard for this over the past few years as the pressure has grown, Essex would want to play a major part in any work to create a sustainable care system for future generations."

Chris Hayward, Hertfordshire County Council's cabinet member for resources, said no decision would be made without a 'rigorous democratic process'.

"Given the scale of the financial challenge in adult social care, we cannot ignore any opportunities to raise additional money to fund vital services which help older and vulnerable people live fulfilling and independent lives," he said.

"We would prefer to avoid asking for additional money from the taxpayers of Hertfordshire, but as this is the option presented by central Government to avoid causing hardship to many elderly and vulnerable people in Hertfordshire we will have to give it careful consideration.

"No decisions will be made until our budget has gone through a rigorous democratic process in the new year."

Worker hits out at plans to fund help for elderly as a 'lottery'

SOCIAL care is at risk of becoming a 'lottery' if funding is not secured, according to a care worker with ten years' experience.

The worker, who wishes to be known only as Karen and lives in Mercury land, said underfunding would lead to greater scrutiny of how ill someone is before care is given.

She said care would end up being 'drip-fed' and vital services would be minimised.

She added: "It will become a lottery for whom is deemed needing urgent care, the criteria for help from Adult Care Services will be scrutinised and questioned.

"It will become less person-centred, which contradicts The Care Act, and more about money and budgets."

She said workers providing 'vital care' were under pressure to provide top quality services on a tight budget.

Regulated

"Raising council tax will mean people will be plugging the deficit for care needs," she said.

"So using the council tax will just mean any percentage will be added as and when the local authorities need more money."

She added: "Councils need to be honest about how they determine what they are spending their budgets on.

"Government needs to recognise this industry and protect it.

"Private for-profit care provision needs to be regulated.

"Social services, adult care and councils and the Government need to liaise with the care community and take advice and understand their job role, not make decisions when they don't do the hands on side of the job."

Council's firm HTS taking over housing repairs and maintenance work 'to keep pound in Harlow'

A NEW company set up by Harlow Council is preparing to serve residents with their housing repairs and maintenance needs as well as look after the town's environment.

HTS (Property and Environment) will take over from Kier Harlow as their ten-year tenure draws to a close on January 31.

Residents can expect to see new vans with the HTS logo and operatives wearing new uniforms and HTS badges when the company rolls out its services in the new year.

The HTS team will continue to offer the services currently provided by Kier Harlow including the repairs and maintenance of council houses and buildings, as well as cleaning the streets of Harlow and cutting the town's grass.

Managing director John Phillips, non-executive chairman Michael Harrowen and finance director Alex Morris, will work alongside Harlow councillors Simon Carter, Bob Davis, and John Strachan, to provide the services.

BOARD: Bob Davis, Alex Morris, Richard Strachan, John Phillips, Simon Carter and Michael Harrowen

Mr Phillips said: "As a local authority trading company, we are currently working to get ready for trading. At the moment, there are 350 people working for Kier Harlow who will transfer to HTS.

"As of February 1, we will deliver the same high level of service."

"We are a wholly owned company where we will be placing profits back into the council and keep the savings within the town," said Mr Phillips.

HTS also strives to invest in Harlow employment.

Mr Phillips said: "We would like to give the opportunity to local people and would like local contractors to work for us. We want to keep the pound in Harlow."

The company also plans to build connections with schools and colleges by offering various apprenticeship schemes and work experience with the aim of offering every one in three vacancies to an apprentice up to ten in any year.

HTS have chosen to support Hastingwood charity St Clare Hospice with them named as their charity of the year.

Two housing forums will run next year where residents can ask any questions they may have about the company.

Boogie Storm were propelled straight to the final of Britain's Got Talent after lead judge Cowell selected them as his golden buzzer act.

EXTENSION: Work at the academy will involve building new classrooms, library, and reprographics room

Work on transforming primary academy with extension begins

WORK on the multi-million-pound extension at Longwood Primary Academy has begun.

The academy will acquire four new modern classrooms, a reprographics room and a library once the work is complete in time for their new intake in September 2017.

Longwood Primary School became an academy in January 2015 and has since been praised for being within the top ten per cent for its improved KS2 results.

With a team of dedicated maths and English specialists, 99 per cent of parents say that they are happy with the progress their child is making.

The school also won an accolade for the Child Champion award in the Place2Be awards.

Head teacher, Mr Hollinsley, will be offering a tour for parents and carers to see the progress made by the school on Thursday, January 5, at 9.30am.

No early release for woman's murderer 'I'm pleased my Claire's killer does full term'

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FOUR years after he killed her daughter, a grandmother is pleased Mark Golds will not have his murder sentence reduced.

Golds, an ex-nightclub bouncer, inflicted 22 savage knife wounds on his partner Claire Parrish, 37, in their shared home in Copshall Close, Harlow, in July 2012.

The victim's mother Christine Parrish, 66, of Charters Cross, Harlow, said the attack happened in front of Claire's children and that Golds lost his temper when she told him she wanted to end their relationship.

A police report said it followed a bitter row between the couple at a barbecue earlier that day.

But after Chelmsford Crown Court gave him a life sentence, Golds had hoped to reduce his charge to manslaughter on the basis that he had been in the grip of a psychotic condition.

Snarling

Another police report said Golds, who was 46 at the time, was snarling and appeared deranged upon arrest screaming: "She was evil, the demon is gone, I have killed her... she had Satan in her eyes."

After losing an appeal Golds took his case to the Supreme Court but this was thrown out by judges and Golds will serve the remainder of his 15-year murder sentence behind bars before being eligible for parole.

Mrs Parrish said: "I was so pleased that justice has been done and he is not squirming out of it."

"I knew he was not mad. He lost his temper because Claire wanted to end the relationship. He has shown no remorse."

"We are pleased with the decision but it will not bring Claire back. Her children are growing up without a mum.

"We have got what we wanted which was for him to pay for what he has done. He has got life but he is going to come out and Claire is never going to come home."

The Supreme Court received the appeal in the summer but a press statement revealed that members were not satisfied that his self-control was substantially impaired by any psychotic condition.

Claire Parrish had four children: Daughter Stevie, 23, son Ronnie, 17, son Alfie, 15 and daughter Chrissie, eight. She also had one brother and three sisters.

Her mother continued: "She was brilliant, bubbly, funny and had lots of friends. It has never returned to normal. I used to think I had seen Claire everywhere whenever I saw someone with blonde hair. It is a gap that is never going to be filled."

A statement released by the family read: "After four years of heartache and hell justice has finally been done."

"The Supreme Court came to the decision Mark Golds lost his temper, not his mind. We love and miss you Claire."

Social services identify more than 12,000 county children in need

SOCIAL services are aware of 12,773 children in need in Essex according to figures released by the Government.

In 6,618 cases domestic violence was the reason for children being referred, with 4,981 due to mental health and 439 cases of sexual exploitation.

'Troubling'

Child abuse charity NSPCC publicised the statistics which a spokesman described as "troubling," especially considering a quarter of those referred nationwide were under the age of five.

The spokesman said: "It is troubling the number of children in need has increased, particularly as a significant portion of those being referred are under the age of five."

"The fact that mental health was identified as a factor in more than a third of cases highlights why more than ever we need swift and appropriate help for those who are suffering with mental health issues."

"Mental health problems can be devastating whether they affect the child in need, or their family members at home."

■ Any child struggling with mental health, whether their own or the mental health of a loved one, can call Childline on 0800 11 11.

Courtney gets so close to £250k but... he's FIRED!

The Apprentice finalist with Harlow links falls just short

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

COURTNEY Wood said he has 'mixed emotions', about not becoming Lord Sugar's business partner after finishing second on The Apprentice.

The novelty gift business boss from Thurrock, who considers himself made in Harlow, was fired on Sunday night's final of the BBC1 reality series.

But the 29-year-old said he has no hard feelings towards series winner Alana Spencer, who scooped the £250,000 investment to develop her luxury cake company.

Courtney said: "I have mixed emotions, I would have loved to have won but I do not feel like I could have done anything differently to have changed his mind."

Closest

"The final has to be one of the closest ones we have had. It was on a knife edge and I never once thought I had it in the bag."

"Alana has got a good business model. I am happy for her. I do not have a single regret, I executed my plan to perfection."

"I think Lord Sugar wanted a new challenge."

Courtney started his design career in Harlow, completing an internship at a company on the Oakwood Industrial Estate before it relocated to London.

Three years later he established his own brand Bubblegum Stuff, which he said has received a lot of business on the back of The Apprentice and will now be his immediate focus.

He said: "I used to drive to Harlow every working day. I really enjoyed my time there. I have fond memories of Harlow."

In the 12th series of the reality show he was one of 18 candidates to appear and over the 14 weeks of the televised job interview he managed to survive until the final hurdle.

After a series of trading tasks, interviews and boardroom debates, both finalists had to show how their planned business models could operate with the help of previously fired contestants.

They then had to pitch their plans to 200 industry experts, including Lord Sugar, and although most of the series was filmed earlier this year, Courtney only found out the result last week.

He continued: "It has been a long few months. We really live in a mansion in London and only get one phone call a week to our families."

"We are away from our phones, the internet and any contact with the outside world. It is tough but I enjoyed it."

"We have been living it for nearly a year."

"I originally applied in January and now I have become a Z-list

CLOSE CALL: Courtney Wood and Alana Spencer in the boardroom celebrity with people recognising me in shopping centres."

Courtney said his finest hour was being the winning project manager for two tasks but he hopes to forget the time he did not sell any jet skis at a boat show.

Lord Sugar said on air that he had a 'very difficult task', as both were 'very credible candidates'.

Terrifying

On the boss Courtney said: "He is the same on television as he is in real life. I really like him."

"I can describe the boardroom in one word. Terrifying."

"You have got really bright lights on you, it is uncomfortable and you are afraid you have not done well."

Essex Police crack down on drug and drink drivers with 93 arrests

ESSEX Police officers have made 93 drink and drug driving arrests already this month in their Christmas campaign.

The force will crack down on the crimes by telling perpetrators and their families how it feels to deal with the consequences of their actions.

Since December 1, 65 drivers have been arrested on suspicion of drink-driving and 28 arrested on suspicion of drug-driving.

Adam Pipe, casualty reduction manager at Essex Police, said: "My officers are better equipped than ever to detect drink and drug drivers on the roads but everyone has a part to play in this effort."

"If you know someone who drives under the influence of drink or drugs please do the right thing this Christmas and report them by calling 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111."

Students dance off with achievement certificates at awards night

PUPILS from two Harlow schools were presented with awards from members of Britain's Got Talent winners Diversity.

Jordan Banjo and Perri Kiely from the dance troupe presented achievement certificates to two students from Mark Hall Academy, First Avenue, Harlow and two from Kingsmoor Academy, Ployters Road, Harlow.

They were just some of many to be recognised at the Academy Transformation Trust Pupil Awards 2016, an event held earlier this month.

Skye Stephens, of Kingsmoor, and Caitlin Moylan, of Mark Hall, won the overcoming adversity award while Megan Spencer, of Kingsmoor, won the creativity award.

Harvey Mead, of Mark Hall, won the charity fundraising award.

Corinne Franceschi, principal at Mark Hall Academy, said: "Harvey has been an exceptional fundraiser this year and a real driving force. He voluntarily collated numerous raffle prizes from various businesses around Harlow and volunteered his time to market our charity 10km walk for charity Children With Cancer. Harvey also designed the posters, collection sheets and liaised with the charity.

"He has definitely shown that he supports the journey we are on to make both Mark Hall and our community a better place."

WORKOUT PLAN: Tony Durcan

'Why should we pay for your gym?'

THE police and crime commissioner for Essex has caused a stir by budgeting £44,000 to improve their staff gym.

Roger Hirst has been criticised by Harlow Labour councillor Tony Durcan for his Essex Police annual budget, which also included spending £575,000 on IT.

Taxpayers will also contribute towards £600,000 to assist in ill health retirement and £75,000 on occupational health advice.

At the police and crime panel meeting into the budget, Mr Durcan asked Mr Hirst: "Why should Harlow residents pay for these items when locally we are getting worse services?"

He continued: "People want to see more police out and about doing their job to keep the community safe, not in the gym or sitting at computers."

Funding

"We still don't know what the final increase will be but clearly we're going to have to dig deep to find the extra funding."

"If people are having to pay more, it is right that we question how it will be spent to ensure it addresses real need."

Conservative PCC Mr Hirst told the Star, in response to the gym funding question, that it is important for officers to keep physically fit.

He said: "The public expect that police officers are both physically and mentally fit for duty. Every year officers experience stresses on body and mind in the course of doing their job that most people at work will never experience."

"Providing equipment and support for officers so that they retain fitness and recover from injury quicker keeps them out working to prevent and reduce crime in communities."

"Buying new equipment is not for entertainment or leisure, it is for maintaining physical standards and performance."

LINE-UP: Members of motorcycle club Rough Creed and their families meet at The Square before delivering presents to children on Princess Alexandra Hospital's Dolphin Ward

Bikers deliver Christmas cheer to poorly children

CHRISTMAS wishes of poorly children were granted by members of a motorbike group who completed a merry present drop.

Last Saturday, Rough Creed Motorcycle Club revved off from The Square, Fourth Avenue, Harlow, before riding around the town and delivering gifts to youngsters on the Dolphin Ward at Princess Alexandra Hospital, in Hamstel Road, Harlow.

The kind-hearted bikers also bought 60 tickets for members and families of Harlow Down syndrome support charity Upwards With Downs to attend Snow White, the Christmas production at The Victoria Hall Theatre.

Enjoyable

Pat Cleary, secretary of Rough Creed, said: "It was really enjoyable, we all had a good time out."

"The first ride was in 2011 and we have done it all but one year since, so this was our fourth ride the club has organised."

"As ever there was elation. We emailed the ward manager ahead to make sure it was OK and the nursing staff were so happy to see us arrive and donate the presents."

Rough Creed members and their families assembled at The Square before riding over to Upwards With Downs headquarters in Parsloe Road, Harlow.

Next, the bikers made their way around Epping, Theydon Bois, Abridge and Ongar before riding back to Harlow and finishing at the hospital. Father Christmas, who had joined the group on the ride, then distributed toys to the children in the Dolphin Ward who are aged up to 16.

Mr Cleary added: "We split the toys for those aged one to seven and for those aged eight to 16, we tried to make sure they were hospital friendly. We brought everything from dolls to trucks, car carriers and building blocks."

"I would like to thank the public who donated the presents and the businesses that displayed our posters. The Post Office has been very supportive."

"Without a doubt we will do it again next year."

POPULAR: Winter Walkies 2016 gets under way

Winter Walkies under starter's orders

DOG days are upon us as registration has opened for St Clare Hospice's annual fundraiser Winter Walkies.

The 2017 edition will be held on Sunday February 26 and organisers from the charity are hoping the 11th edition of the mass sponsored walk will be their most successful event yet.

More than 200 walkers and their furry friends are expected to join the stroll which will set off from the hospice itself in Hastingwood Road, Hastingwood.

St Clare provides palliative care to those with terminal and life-limiting illnesses. Donations and funds raised from events such as this are vital in meeting the £4million annual running costs.

Dani De'ath, community fundraising lead, said: "Anyone is welcome to join us on this rural route across the beautiful Essex countryside - whether you are a dog owner or not.

"Just remember your wellies as it is likely there will be plenty of muddy feet and muddy paws."

Advanced registration costs £10 for adults and £5 for children, which includes a free soup, dog medal and certificates for children. Walkers can also sign up on the day.

In addition the hospice is holding the Cutest Canine Competition from Monday January 23 to Friday January 29 on their Facebook page. Entries should be made for this by Friday January 20.

Christmas cheer on the menu for hospice staff and patients

'We will probably be roasting around 16 turkeys in the run up to Christmas'

CHEF: Samantha Hegarty, at St Clare Hospice.

HOSPICE staff will be working to make Christmas Day as special as possible for patients and their families.

Workers at St Clare Hospice in Hastingwood will be on duty providing a tasty Christmas dinner on the day.

Samantha Hegarty is a chef at the hospice. She said: "The Christmas season is a very busy time for us in the kitchen.

Guests

"We will have two staff Christmas lunches to cook in the lead up, as well as the patient Christmas lunch on December 19 when we are expecting around 60 guests.

"If you add up all those Christmas dinners - we will probably be roasting around 16 turkeys in the

TASTY: Hospice staff will be serving delicious Christmas fare run up to Christmas."

She added: "This year I will be working on Christmas Eve, cooking breakfast, lunch and dinner for the patients and their families, and preparing food for Christmas dinner the next day.

"One year there were 40 people for Christmas dinner on December 25 so there will be lots of carrots to peel and turkeys to stuff."

The hospice's director Philip Ball said: "St Clare will be running as usual over Christmas - the same as we do 365 days of the year.

"If patients need us, then we will be there. Christmas is a busy time of year for hospitals and GPs as so many patients want to make sure that they are at home over Christmas - December 23 is the busiest day for discharging patients at the hospital.

Team

"Our Hospice at Home team will be out in the community caring for people in their own homes over Christmas so that they can be with their families and sharing precious moments together."

BUSY: Philip Ball, director of St Clare Hospice.

Skills shortage leads to higher than average unemployment

HARLOW is facing a "skills shortage" according to an employment expert.

Unemployment in the town is currently at 4.2 per cent, higher than the average in the east of England which is 3.7 per cent but lower than the national average of 5.1 per cent.

And Dave Cope, the manager of Harlow's Job Centre, said the biggest challenge facing the area was making sure residents have the right skills to take advantage of the opportunities available.

Challenge

"The massive challenge in the economy is the skills gap," he said.

"We have some very big projects on the horizon in the west of the county. The impact of the London Gateway development will mean the area requires skilled workers.

CHALLENGE: Unemployment in Harlow is higher than the average in the east of England

"If you talk to employers involved, the priority is around logistics like trains and roads. The skill shortage in driving is reaching a point where some action needs to be taken.

"We're working with employers at the moment. Some of the costs of training are quite high for obvious reasons and we are trying to bridge that gap because the skills gap isn't helping employers."

He also said the Job Centre is working with companies to help people gain the skills they need.

He explained: "If you wanted to get a forklift license in Essex it is quite easy to get for an unemployed person and we have paid for lots of people to get them, but it's not necessarily what employers want."

Manageable

Despite the numbers being higher in Harlow than the rest of the region, Mr Cope said it was a "manageable" number.

"I wouldn't say it's a problem," he added. "Over the last year it's quite interesting as the number has remained steady.

"This time last year it was two per cent higher that's actually quite static really. The figure hasn't varied that much."

■ TRANSPORT

Did our MP contact firms?

EVEN as the disgraceful wars at Southern continue to show contempt for hundreds of thousands of passengers through continued strike action and as BA and Royal Mail prepare to compound the misery of the general public this festive season, Church Langley commuters were dealt a further blow this week.

The 418 bus operated by the ironically named TrustyBus announced their Church Langley to Epping service will cease as of January.

This comes after commuters faced annoyance and frustration of the service being reduced by half, price hikes and the daily occurrence of buses running up to an hour late, breaking down or simply failing to show at all.

Recently in the Star our MP Robert Halfon had waxed lyrical about taking the commuters' qualms directly to the bus companies, perhaps he can explain via your pages exactly what he did.

■ WEATHER

Drivers have a need for speed

JUST like last year, I am heartened that fog, frost and poor visibility have not intimidated some road-users in Harlow in recent weeks.

Whether using minimal lighting, defective lights or no lights at all, they have all maintained their constant yearning for excessive speed on our roads.

A tribute to excellent eyesight, judgement and good old British tenacity not to let adverse conditions diminish their efforts. Priceless.

I have excluded cyclists from this observation as most of them ride on the pavement.

Thanks.

THIS handsome robin has been submitted by reader and Harlow Star Tog Squad member Chinara Djumanalieva, taken recently at Parndon Mill Lock.

If you have a photograph you have taken in or around Harlow which you would like to be featured in the Star, email a high resolution, landscape copy in JPEG format, along with a brief description of where and when it was taken, to kerigh.palmer@

Please remember to include your name and address and where the photo was taken. Please add "Star POW" to the e mail subject box.

■ GILSTON PARK

Irritated by comment

I WRITE with some irritation after reading your report titled "Some myth busting must be done" (Star, December 15).

What particularly perplexed me were the comments made by Mary Parsons, a director of Places for People, the Developer of the planned 10,000 new homes to be built as part of the Gilston Park development.

The comment that particularly irritated me was, "people have said that a bigger Harlow is not a better Harlow. But Harlow has to grow to be a better town".

Is an unelected person, who has no connection with the area, really qualified to make a public statement about our town.

She also comments that "These homes are needed, and most people we have asked have agreed that".

Well, I have not spoken to one person who lives in the town, who welcomes the building of these houses.

Although it is East Herts council who have given the go ahead, it is Harlow where there will be the most impact.

I personally don't think people are prepared for the impact that this will development will have on the town, in the impact it will have on such things as the Princess Alexandra Hospital.

J Gray,
Harlow

Justification for homes

OF course, we've got to build 10,000 homes in Harlow North (Star, December 15) in addition to 1.5million elsewhere in our once beautiful country.

How else can we accommodate the extra 300,000 (600,000?) people coming here every year to settle?

■ SCIENCE

Is there really any proof?

IN Through the Looking Glass, Humpty Dumpty says: "When I use a word, it means just what I choose it to mean — neither more nor less."

Clare Harrison seems to have adopted this maxim with respect to the so-called Law of Attraction in her letter of December 15.

Philosophers of science use the term "scientific theory" to refer to an explanation of objectively verifiable phenomena that makes predictions by means of which it can be tested.

Ms Harrison claims the right to use the term "scientific theory" to refer to an anti-scientific dogma for which there is no evidence, and which makes no testable predictions.

I may choose to call a sheet of sandpaper "a slice of cheese"; nevertheless, it would still be inadvisable to put it in a sandwich.

Those who claim to have evidence that "thought frequencies" can cause molecular changes in water are either deluded or they are lying.

It was this kind of magical thinking in past centuries that inspired the execution of blameless women accused of witchcraft.

Rhonda Byrne wrote a book called The Secret in which she claimed to have "discovered" the so-called Law of Attraction.

In the DVD of The Secret Lisa Nichols asserts that we receive bills in the post because our negative thoughts attract them!

The victims of accident, illness, and injustice are blamed for their own misfortune by advocates of the so-called Law of Attraction.

According to this poisonous dogma, if you are homeless or unemployed it is your own fault for thinking "negative thoughts".

Byrne and her apostles are essentially conservatives justifying the socio-economic status quo.

People suffering from disabling anxiety should avoid enriching these mumbo-jumbo merchants, and instead visit a doctor for advice and referral to a professional NHS therapist who will provide treatment free of charge.

Christmas story told by children

BLOSSOMS Nursery youngsters sang carols and retold the story of Mary and Joseph's journey to Bethlehem in their annual nativity play.

The pre-school in Thornwood, Harlow, welcomed parents for the show, which also looked at how Christmas is celebrated around the world.

Together

Bobbi Chana, staff member at Blossoms, said: "Our children and team worked very hard to put this Nativity together."

"Parents and grandparents were invited to see the play and joined us with the classic singing."

"It was very overwhelming, we are so proud of our children."

IN BRIEF

Shoppers give generously

SAFFRON WALDEN: Accuro Saturday Play Club and the Under-19 Youth Project ventured out in the cold on Sunday morning to join in with the festive charity collections at Tesco.

People in Saffron Walden gave generously, with the collection raising a total of £314.

Deputy play leader Dianne Carter was delighted with the amount.

She said: "We are so grateful to all the volunteers who helped on the day."

"And we also want to thank all those busy Christmas shoppers who donated to our wonderful charity."

To find out more about the charity, visit www.accuro.org.uk, email enquiries@accuro.org.uk or phone (01279) 870297.

Seatbelt woes

ESSEX: The county's parents are among the worst in the UK for making sure their children are wearing seatbelts, according to new data.

A freedom of information request revealed Essex Police logged 1,338 incidents of parents not adhering to the child seatbelt law.

The data took in the period from 2013 to 2015.

Research carried out by comparison website Confused.com found that as a county Essex scored pretty badly. The county is second from bottom in this regard.

Busy getaway

STANSTED: Tomorrow is set to be the busiest of the Christmas getaway for flyers.

Stansted Airport expects a total of 43,000 passengers to jet out to one of 170 destinations tomorrow.

In total, more than 1.2 million passengers are forecast to travel through the airport over the festive period.

But the busiest overall day will be December 30.

On this day more than 80,000 passengers will pass through the terminal.

Around 3,000 people are also expected to fly in and out on Christmas Day itself.

For the first time, passengers passing through the security search area will hear Christmas music to help get them in the Christmas spirit.

Youngster's volunteering brings sporting plaudits

Teenager makes sure Essex's grassroots events goes off smoothly

A 16-YEAR-OLD boy from Harlow has won the accolade for Young Volunteer of the Year at the Active Essex Sports Awards.

Saul Lintonbon-Baker took the title at the ceremony held at Chelmsford racecourse on December 7, for his volunteer work to sport throughout the town.

The young volunteer award is presented to someone who has made an outstanding contribution to local sport to which they deserves recognition.

For the past three years, Saul has been a volunteer assistant at Harlow Penguins Swimming Club and this year has taken on the role of a swimming instructor.

Saul has also volunteered to marshal at the Harlow Park

Runs after he started working with the Harlow Junior Park Run as a run director three months ago.

He played a vital role in the team at the first Junior Park Run when it began five weeks ago.

Yet Saul does not just participate at the sporting events themselves but also works endlessly behind the scenes and this year he helped to plan and advertise Harlow's Big Bike Ride which was organised by Hub and Spoke at Bush Fair.

Ride

When the ride went ahead, Saul volunteered as a marshal for Church Langley.

All of Saul's volunteering has taken place while also completing his GCSE's at Sir Charles Kao UTC.

Saul was nominated for the award by event director of Harlow Junior Park Runs, Catherine Penketh where he was then automatically entered by Active Harlow for the awards. She said: "Saul is on the core team of volunteers for Harlow Junior Park Run."

"Although we have only had six events to date Saul has proved to be an indispensable member of the team."

"He has been helpful with the planning stages and has been willing to travel to other junior park runs to see how they are run."

"He helps set up and close down the course most weeks and is a positive and encouraging marshal to the children who are running and also regularly leads the warm up for the children, considering he is not much older than some of those taking part he leads them in a mature and professional manner."

The entire team involved in the park runs are said to be impressed with the commitment and attitude of Saul and he makes a good role model for others.

Head teacher credits 'experienced staff'

Harlow's best performing school for the second year

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARE Street Community Primary School has been ranked as Harlow's best performing school for the second year in a row.

The school, in Little Grove Field, Harlow, defended their top ranking while Cooks Spinney Primary Academy and Roydon Primary school also performed well.

Tim Voss, head teacher at Hare Street, praised the varied curriculum and hard work of staff behind 84 per cent of pupils achieving an expected standard and 16 per cent achieving a higher standard.

Fantastic

He said: "It is absolutely fantastic. We are really pleased and proud of the boys and girls here."

"I think it is to do with the experienced and established staff we have got here who work with the children over the academic year."

"The thing that does make a difference is having a balanced curriculum. I shows a broad and balanced curriculum brings success."

The Government released fig-

TOP OF THE CLASS: Hare Street Primary is again the best performing primary school in Harlow ures last week based on Key Stage 2 SAT results from across the country.

A school is deemed above the benchmark standard if 65 per cent or more of students meet the expected standards in core subjects mathematics and English.

Mr Voss has been at the helm for 16 years and said this result ranks among the school's best.

He added: "This year's results compares favourably. "They show that after the past five years we have maintained a high standard at Hare Street."

CAKE OFF: Kiddi Caru Day Nursery in Harlow turns 12

Nursery kids tuck into double celebration cake

KIDDI Caru Day Nursery, in Kiln Lane, Harlow, celebrated its 12th birthday and Christmas in one big party.

House chef Natalie Wright baked a dual-purpose cake which had half decorated for both occasion.

Their children, aged five and under, wasted no time to tuck in.

Louise Farrow, nursery manager, said: "Natalie is a fantastic chef and she really outdid herself with this year's birthday and Christmas cake.

"We can't believe we've been open for 12 years now, the time flies by so fast, especially when you consider all of the children we have cared for in that time."

"The party was wonderful and it was lovely to see all the children having fun while enjoying Natalie's fabulous cake."

POINT TO PROVE: Mark Ingall of Harlow Council

Labour sends Tories a message over road safety

HARLOW councillors voted to lobby for more roadside safety measures and better repairs for road surfaces.

In his first motion at a full council meeting, Labour councillor Mark Ingall received full support from his party to pass the item, despite facing opposition from the Conservative group.

Mr Ingall attacked Essex County Council for, what he described as, making residents wait months and years before acting on potholes and not implementing traffic calming measures.

He said: "There are about 4,500 potholes in Harlow, not to mention the other hazards on the roads."

"It is time we sent the Tories (at County Hall) a strong and urgent message."

Pride

Mike Danvers, who seconded the motion, added: "Let us have some pride in our town. To have pride in the town we need to make it look good and right now it is an embarrassment, it looks like a third world country."

GROWING PROBLEM: A pothole in Harlow

By passing the motion Harlow councillors will collectively urged the county council to: Prioritise road repairs to residential streets in Harlow, commence traffic schemes to improve residents' safety and ensure the allocation of its road repair budget to reflect the higher density of usage in Harlow compared to other parts of the county.

Too hard

Both UKIP members of Harlow Council voted with Labour at the meeting tonight, but the opposition, led by Tory councillor Andrew Johnson, felt the ruling party was being too hard on County Hall.

Mr Johnson, whose father and fellow Harlow Conservative

Eddie Johnson is the county council cabinet member for highways and transport, said: "Looking at the local network there are 117 miles of road in Harlow out of 3,109 in Essex."

"Considering this I think Harlow is getting more than its fair share. I know that Essex County Council is reducing priority one and two potholes."

Before the meeting's proceedings began council chairman Edna Stevens led tributes to former Harlow Council member Guy Mitchinson who died last week.

Picture by PA

Ever get the feline you've made a wrong decision?

YOU have probably been told to dial 999 in an emergency but chances are you would not be bothered by a cat following you down a road.

But one woman was so concerned at the feline, which she described as hissing, that she called the emergency services.

Met Police in London has released the example along with several of other time-wasting call examples to warn people that calling 999 should not be taken lightly.

Other calls included an individual asking what time betting shops close and another asking for a lift home. A third reported simply that he was lost.

Chief superintendent Pippa Mills of Met Police said:

"Although the majority of people who require police assistance use the numbers correctly, there are still too many calls to emergency lines where the 999 number is being used as an information service.

"In many cases a simple internet search would provide the answer to the question posed by the caller."

Thriller that gets lost in space

Beautiful people perform ugly acts in Morten Tyldum's intriguing sci-fi thriller, written by Jon Spaihts (Doctor Strange, Prometheus).

Set on a labyrinthine spaceship hurtling through distant galaxies, Passengers is a glossy meditation on solitude and self-sacrifice that loses its way in a messy and deeply unsatisfying final act that seems to have been cleaved from a different picture.

Interpersonal dramas and moral conundrums that germinate in the opening hour are trampled by slam-bang pyrotechnics reminiscent of the Oscar-winning thriller Gravity, albeit without that film's immersive, jaw-dropping aesthetics.

There are undeniable, base pleasures watching Jennifer Lawrence and Chris Pratt in various states of undress at the centre of this muddle, including a couple of steamy bedroom scenes and an inventive swimming sequence in zero gravity.

Moments of imagination and

Passengers

SCI-FI: (12A) 116 minutes
Director: Morten Tyldum
Starring: Jennifer Lawrence, Chris Pratt, Michael Sheen, Laurence Fishburne, Andy Garcia

verve are depressingly scarce though, and a proper resolution has apparently been sucked out of one of the airlocks.

Instead, screenwriter Spaihts resorts to a series of disaster movie tropes to up the ante for his stricken central duo.

All that's missing is a wily extra-terrestrial predator hidden in one of the cargo bays to tear through that beautifully exposed, gym-toned flesh.

Mankind searches for new planets to inhabit and the Starship Avalon launches, loaded with 258 crew and 5,000 passengers in deep sleep, bound for the distant colony of Homestead II.

The journey from Earth will take 120 years, predominantly on autopilot, but a meteor shower causes a malfunction to the ship's central computer.

VOYAGE OF DISCOVERY: Chris Pratt and Jennifer Lawrence come out of deep sleep early in Passengers

Hibernation pods malfunction and mechanical engineer Jim Preston (Chris Pratt) and journalist Aurora Dunn (Jennifer Lawrence) wake prematurely.

They discover they cannot reset the pods' sleep command and must spend the rest of their lives with the ship's robot bartender Arthur (Michael Sheen) while friends and loved ones slumber peacefully and defy the ravages of time for the next 90 years.

As they come to terms with their predicament, romance sparks between Jim and Aurora.

When crew chief Gus Mancuso (Laurence Fishburne) is also roused early by a software glitch, a shocking secret is exposed that undermines the couple's relationship.

"The drowning man will always drag somebody down with him," notes Mancuso cryptically, before a series of failures in the computer mainframe threatens the safety of everyone on board Avalon.

Passengers is a missed opportunity that relies on the white-hot star wattage of Lawrence and Pratt to keep us engaged.

They make the most of slim pickings in Spaihts' misfiring script, drawing on halcyon days in The Hunger Games and Guardians Of The Galaxy respectively for action set-pieces.

Supporting performances are largely redundant, including Michael Sheen as the automaton bartender, whose intentionally lifeless performance exemplifies the lack of heart beneath the picture's expensive, shiny surface.

Donnie Darko returns to the big screen

SPECIAL SCREENING: Jake Gyllenhaal (left) stars in Donnie Darko, back in cinemas this week

CAN it really be 15 years since Donnie Darko arrived on the big screen?

The directorial debut of Richard Kelly was an instant cult classic even if it didn't light up the box office on its release in 2001 largely due to problems with distribution.

Yet the film found an audience, with Brits especially fond of it and word of mouth making it one of the must-see movies of the early 2000s.

Now it's back in cinemas for its 15th anniversary with a 4K restoration thanks to Arrow Films.

The tale of the troubled teen of the title, it starred Jake Gyllenhaal as Donnie who's prone to sleepwalking and has an imaginary friend with a difference – he's a sinister six-foot rabbit called Frank.

Throw in time travel, bits of falling planes and the end of the world as well as the customary teenage angst and a great soundtrack, and you've got a cinematic treat. Darryl Webber

Donnie Darko is out from Friday, December 23.

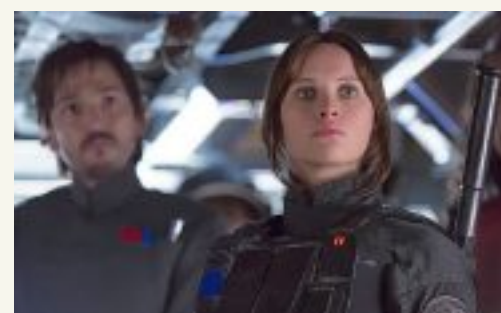

BEST FILMS OUT NOW

Rogue One: A Star Wars Story

Gareth Edwards' spin-off prequel to the original Star Wars is an action-packed tale of resistance fighters taking on the overwhelming power of the Galactic Empire. Felicity Jones is a fiercely independent and reluctant hero who leads a motley crew on a mission to steal the plans to the Death Star, the ultimate weapon of mass destruction that her father helped design. Neatly and ingeniously dovetailing with Episode IV of the space opera, Rogue One blends spectacular set-pieces with gritty action and interesting characters to produce a worthy addition to the Star Wars saga. There are no Jedis in this outing, but the new faces make you forget that – plus some familiar ones are on hand to rekindle the old magic. Most impressive.

Moana

After the incredible worldwide success of Frozen (more than a $1 billion in box-office receipts), Disney's next big animation is another winning tale of triumph over adversity with a strong female character leading the way. Drawing on Polynesian legends, it's the tale of a chieftain's daughter, Moana, who defies her father's wishes to journey out to the open sea to try to find out why their island is losing its fertility. Her adventure involves a cocky demi-god, a lava monster and the dumbest hen on the planet. Beautiful visuals, an affecting storyline and engaging characters makes for another big Disney success.

REBELS: Diego Luna and Felicity Jones in Rogue One

The Eagle Huntress

Girl power is to the fore again in this mesmerising documentary that has a Star Wars link – it's produced and narrated by Daisy Ridley, star of The Force Awakens. It's the powerful story of a 13-year-old Kazakh girl in a nomadic Mongolian community who aspires to be the first female eagle hunter in 12 generations of her family. This is a stunning rites-of-passage feature which has a limited release but is well worth seeking out. DW

Chris Pratt is literally jumping with joy at the thought of his new movie Passengers being released.

"I can't curb my enthusiasm," grins the suited star, as he lifts himself out of the chair and kicks his legs in the air, much to his co-star Jennifer Lawrence's amusement.

"I love movies. I love going to the movies," says Minnesota-born Pratt, 37. "This is a great movie. I'm really excited for people to finally see it."

"We worked really hard over the last year making it. It was the best script I've ever read and I think we got it right, so I'm dying for people to go and see it."

Kentucky-born Lawrence, 26, elegant in a floor-length floral dress, is nodding in agreement.

"I think it's a nice escape," she adds. "It's a great setting. It's a very intimate, human story on a beautiful ship, with dire consequences."

In the sci-fi action thriller, the Hollywood stars play strangers Jim and Aurora, two people who've decided to leave Earth and embark on a 120-year journey to another planet to be part of a new colony called Homestead II.

COLLAPSE

Only, their hibernation pods wake them 90 years too early and, as the ship teeters on the brink of collapse, they're forced to unravel the mystery behind the fault.

"The ship is falling apart," Pratt explains. "Robots start to malfunction, lights flicker on and off. Ultimately, our characters find out there's a reason why it's malfunctioning and we're suddenly in a desperate situation, trying to fix a problem to save not only our own lives, but the lives of all of the other passengers on the ship."

It appears that humanity's on the cusp of a new era of space travel, and Pratt believes "there's a longing to be an adventurer" in all of us.

"To get out and explore and head off into uncharted territories," says the actor, who famously transformed from plump slacker Andy Dwyer in hit TV comedy Parks and Recreation to buff action star in movies like Guardians Of The Galaxy and Jurassic World.

"I think it's something that appeals to all people, and it has since the beginning of time. It certainly does to these two characters, they're looking for something and where they end up is much different to where they were expecting."

He doesn't want to ruin any surprises, but the father-of-one (he's married to actress Anna Faris) cheekily adds: "It's safe to say they find what they didn't even know they were looking for."

Describing Jim as 'kind of a throwback', Pratt adds: "He's very much a working-class guy. He's considered a desirable trade, as a mechanical engineer, because he'll be helping to start a civilisation. If something breaks, he'll be there to fix it."

The actor's "very different" to his alter-ego, comments Lawrence, a four-time Academy

Out of this World

Chris Pratt and Jennifer Lawrence have teamed up for new sci-fi thriller Passengers. The Hollywood duo talk to Susan Griffin about discomfort on set, dance-offs and daring to explore the unknown Award-nominee, who endeared herself to millions when she tripped en route to collect her Best Actress Oscar for Silver Linings Playbook in 2013.

"Jim acts like he's never really had a girlfriend, and he doesn't really know how to behave around women; that's charming and sweet, but it's not like Chris at all, who's married and funny," she observes. "It was interesting to watch him go from Chris Pratt to a shy, insecure, romantic person."

In contrast, Aurora is a New York writer on the assignment of a lifetime – to be the first person in human history to make the round trip.

"It's such a huge decision to make," notes Lawrence of her character's challenge. "You have to start a brand new life on a brand new planet that you've never been to, and when you arrive [back on Earth], everyone you know will be dead.

"I can't imagine saying goodbye to everybody I know and love. I understand her thirst for more, but I don't think I could make that kind of permanent decision."

Their spaceship, Avalon, is a character in itself, something Pratt describes as "part badass spaceship, part luxury cruise liner", with fine-dining restaurants on board, high-end stores, sports courts, a cinema and observation deck – which all made for an interesting time on set.

"Everything was beautiful and interesting," recalls Lawrence. "It was a different atmosphere for a movie."

There's also a swimming pool, which Aurora's doing a few laps in when the ship's gravity fails. Although no stranger to action sequences, The Hunger Games star describes the scene as "probably the hardest thing I've ever shot".

"Spending that much time in a pool, water up my nose, everywhere... But it was amazing – when I saw the CG example of what it was going to look like, I was really excited. I've never seen anything like that in a movie," she reveals.

There's also a scene which sees the two of them take part in a dance-off, something Lawrence found almost as uncomfortable to shoot – but for very different reasons.

"Oh, Jen loves to dance," Pratt teases.

"I'm doing a ballerina movie next and I was just on the phone with the director yesterday," reveals Lawrence. "They asked, 'How's dance lessons going?' I was like, 'I can't! I don't know if you understand what's happening! I don't think you get it!'"

While Lawrence battled with showcasing her best moves on screen, Pratt didn't share her feeling of discomfort.

Nor did he have any qualms about stripping off.

"Oh yeah, my bottom, you see it a couple times in this movie," he admits, grinning.

"I felt fine about it. I wasn't fully naked, because they give you something to cover yourself."

"It's a sock," whispers Lawrence, before changing her choice of description to "sack", and the pair of them double up with laughter.

"Yeah they give you like a 'sack sock'," continues Pratt, once they've calmed themselves.

"Come for the nudity!" he quips. "Come for the sack. Stay for the action!"

■ Passengers is released on Wednesday, December 21

WINE

WITH a few days to go before Christmas Day let's make sure we have the bubbles sorted!

PROSECCO LA MARCA CUVÉE NV DOCG (MAJESTIC WINE)

I've worked my way through a lot of prosecco (I know, what a hard job) but this is by far my favourite.

Usually I find prosecco quite citrusy but this one is packed with layers of soft stone fruit flavours such as peach and apricot and apple character with a beautifully balanced sweetness.

Light and frothy bubbles from tank method production add to the enjoyable drinking experience. This prosecco would be the perfect match to a melon and Parma ham starter or for drinking with those left over cold meats on Boxing Day.

SINGLE BOTTLE PRICE: £13.99
MIX SIX PRICE: £9.99

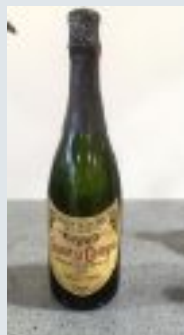

JUVE Y CAMPS RESERVA FAMILIA

2012 CAVA (MAJESTIC WINE)

What I find most special about cava is that it is made in the same delicate 'traditional method' as Champagne.

From the handpicking of the grapes to the aging of the wine in the bottle, cava ticks all the boxes.

The Juve Y Camps Family base its cavas purely on reserva and gran reserva styles.

This particular cava is hand-riddled (hand moving of bottles to remove the natural sediment) like that of Champagne, and is bottle aged for 40 months before release adding to the complexity of toasty, citrus and brioche notes.

This is also a vintage cava so the best grapes from the best vintage are used. It's a fantastic alternative to Champagne with a much lesser price tag.

SINGLE BOTTLE PRICE: £14.99

MIX SIX PRICE: £12.99

RUINART BLANC DE BLANC

I will always scream and shout about this Champagne because it is just simply incredible!

Made from 100 per cent Chardonnay grapes that are mainly harvested from the Premier Crus of Cotes Des Blancs and Montagne Des Reims Terroirs, which are the Terroirs most famous for growing first class Chardonnay for Champagne.

Ruinart Blanc De Blanc has delicate flavours of jasmine, white peaches and has a beautiful creaminess that is just divine and screams elegance.

With a slightly more expensive price tag, I promise you it is worth it. Treat yourself, it is Christmas!

SINGLE BOTTLE PRICE: £59.99

MIX SIX PRICE: £49.99

Stephen's bad mood is good for a laugh

STEPHEN K Amos is feeling annoyed. Trump, Brexit and social media trolls have all fuelled the comedian's rage as he continues his World Famous tour.

The BBC panel show regular will perform at Harlow Playhouse on Friday, February 10.

"For the first time in a long time, I am feeling really annoyed," he said. "So when I've been trying out new stuff with audiences, I've been warning them, 'you know what, I'm pretty annoyed at people'. And for some reason they all laugh at that, perhaps because I'm not normally seen as a confrontational type."

"I'm in despair about the world at the moment. I am mainly annoyed at what people are prepared to say and do on social media."

"I see some of my comedy friends on Twitter getting into conversations with complete strangers, but what is the point? If you don't like my stuff you don't have to go online to tell me."

If there has always been one upside to the doom and gloom it is that bad news always gives some good comic material.

Stephen kicked off World Famous on Friday, November 4 in Winchester and will be continuing until Saturday, February 25 when he performs for the final time in London's Soho Theatre.

He added: "There are so many other things to get excited about that effect all of us. Britain having a new Prime Minister that we haven't voted for Trump as leader of the free world.

"The only good thing about hearing that people voted Brexit or that there are people who would vote for Trump is knowing that those people are out there in my audience."

"Gone are the days when you had like-minded friends who share all your beliefs and now you just can't preach to the converted. That makes for a great challenge to me as a performer."

"I'm not one of those comics who say something just to create debate or whatever. I'll back up what I say or believe in and I'm open to hearing your point of view without abuse or denigration and with respect."

"I don't mind that description at all. It's very much a conscious thing as I'm aware of the perception of me being a very happy-go-lucky, carefree sort of guy."

"But I have a point of view and sometimes I want to make a statement about something. However, I never forget that it's a comedy show and people have paid to laugh; I don't want to just stand in front of an audience who will simply agree with everything I say."

"I want to throw spanners in the works and have a mixture of people in front of me of different ages and from different backgrounds."

"I want them all to be laughing at the same things, and when you've done that, with thought and humour, then you're onto a winning streak."

Top Hat are on top of their game

ALL SINGING ALL DANCING: Top Hat performers

YOUNG actors and dancers at Top Hat Essex gave The Wizard Of Oz a musical update in their Christmas production.

Dorothy And The Wicked Wizz allowed the group, who practise at Mark Hall Academy, Harlow, to show off their three age groups.

A spokeswoman from the dance, drama and singing company, said: "It was a great show, children performed and acted very professionally. It showcased the local talent."

Top Hat members are now looking ahead to their next production Musical Moments, which contains a mixture of numbers and dance routines from West End shows such as Rent and Hairspray.

A free open day and trial will be held on Saturday, January 14 at Mark Hall Academy.

Crossing Boundaries sees two media work in harmony

SUFFOLK artists Jane Lewis and Caroline Fish are showcasing their works in a contrasting exhibition next month.

Crossing Boundaries, which will be showing at Parndon Mill Gallery in Harlow, blends Jane's oil paintings and Caroline's ceramics.

But while both women work with different media, their pieces are complimentary.

Jane's creations frequently take inspiration from the Suffolk landscape and she believes in the underlying importance and discipline of regular observational drawing.

Caroline, meanwhile, is interested in the lines and shapes within a landscape. The fellow Suffolk artist is also keen to explore how the natural and manmade can interact, for instance how a telegraph wire can cut through a view.

She uses the warmth and softness of red earthenware clay and the potential it offers for painted decoration. Building up slips and glaze in layers adds depth and colour, allowing the subtlety of the clay to show through.

Crossing Boundaries will show from Thursday, January 12 to Sunday, February 19.

The gallery typically opens Tuesday to Friday from 10am to 5pm and on Sunday from 2pm to 4pm.

Singer is looking forward to a happy and busy new year

HARLOW-born singer Sarah Croft is hoping 2017 will be a happy one for her band The Hallows.

The alternative pop trio, who draw inspiration from Muse, Kate Bush and Portishead, have just released their latest single, Cardboard Love, ahead of new album Of Time And Tides.

The release date of Friday, January 13 marks the next step in a long process for front-woman Sarah who has a prolific history as the backing singer for Hafdís Huld – and has supported Paolo Nutini, Mika, Bloc Party and played at Glastonbury.

Sarah has close ties with bandmates Dave and Joe with the three meeting at university.

But in forming The Hallows the three have set out on another adventure which has already seen all hands on deck in making the music video for Cardboard Love which went online on Friday.

Be there and be at the Square

THE Square, by the admission of its management, has had its ups and downs this year.

But all are invited to the Fourth Avenue venue's New Year's Eve Party, from 8pm on (you guessed it) Saturday, December 31, to make sure 2016 is closed on a high.

The full line-up has yet to be revealed but it will contain a selection of DJs occupying the upstairs and downstairs parts of the venue. Tickets, costing £10, are on sale now from thesquareharlow.com

By Edward Stephens

WHEN Citroen decided to establish a completely separate brand with its DS models it dramatically broadened the choice for people looking for small up-market cars.

The DS stable offers buyers models that stand out in the car park for their distinctive looks and quality build.

And nowhere is that more true than with the DS 4 Crossback.

This sleek five-seater has the appearance of a coupe thanks to the cleverly concealed handles in the rear doors which help create the car's svelte look.

Improving that look are the 18-inch Brisbane Black high gloss alloy wheels which are part of the extra equipment you get on the Prestige version of this car over the Elegance.

Step inside and the business-like interior immediately impresses with full leather upholstery, a stylish dashboard and intuitive switchgear.

The front seats are not only heated but come with a back massaging feature to ensure you don't end a long journey with any aches and pains.

There is space for three in the back but it's a little snug and legroom is not the most generous. And surprisingly you can't open the rear windows on this model.

But perhaps the most surprising feature of my test car was the engine.

Get behind the wheel and you would swear you were driving a 1.6-litre or 1.8-litre model. Yet beneath the bonnet lurked a turbocharged direct injection three-cylinder, 1.2-litre developing 130bhp.

The PureTech petrol engine has been a real breakthrough for the company with its compact dimensions, low weight yet ability to deliver more power while still keeping emissions at a low level.

In fact these qualities won it the coveted International Engine of the Year 2015.

On the road the performance completely belies the engine's size. Put your right foot down hard and it delivers instantly.

You can hear it's a three-cylinder but only just, as the note has a more sporty sound than anything intrusive and adds to the pleasure of driving this car. The bonus is that this engine will allow you to average some 54 miles per gallon, a figure more normally associated with diesel rather than petrol engines.

At the same time it will hit 62 miles per hour in a very respectable 9.9 seconds and go on to a top speed of 123mph.

You have to rev it hard to get the best performance out of it but it's a gutsy unit that really does deliver. I did find the six-speed gearbox a bit notchy however.

Despite the rakish roofline vision out of the back window is good and reversing is made simple thanks to both parking sensors and a rear colour camera.

For the size of the car there is decent boot, offering 385 litres of space with the seatbacks in position and some 1021 with them lowered, which goes some way to make up for a glove box which is just about large enough to accommodate a packet of sweets.

But if you are looking for a car which is far from mainstream and delivers enjoyable driving the DS4 Crossback is well worth a look.

The true story of a courageous woman fighting to save the family she loves

Holding her head high while her family battled with the consequences of alcoholism, Doreen went back to work as Fleet Street's first female photographer. With the family life she'd always dreamed of falling apart around her, she captured the Swinging Sixties and forged a role in a male-dominated world. A hugely enjoyable portrait of post-war Britain.

Essex County Council and Southend-on-Sea Borough Council Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 (as amended) Town and Country Planning (Local Development) (England) Regulations 2012 Notice of Proposed Modifications of the Essex and Southend-on-Sea Replacement Waste Local Plan

An independent examination into Essex County Council and Southend-on-Sea Borough Council Replacement Waste Local Plan is currently underway. Following public hearing sessions, held in September/October 2016, the Authorities have made a request to the Inspector to make several modifications (changes), which are necessary to make the plan sound and appropriate for adoption. These proposed modifications will be available for public consultation from Thursday 5 January until Thursday 16 February 2017.

The Replacement Waste Local Plan, once adopted, will form part of the Development Plan for Essex and will replace the Essex Waste Local Plan, which was adopted in 2001. Once adopted, the Plan will set out the vision and policy governing waste development in Essex until 2032. The Plan outlines the vision, objectives and spatial strategy to enable the delivery of sustainable waste development and sets out policies to manage waste. The Plan allocates 19 sites and designates 31 Areas of Search for future management facilities.

Lucky Layne escapes horror tackle injury

Yiga and Noto help Hawks beat stubborn Merstham

Ryman Premier

Harlow Town 2
Merstham 1

By Matt Storey

matt.storey@hertsexnews.co.uk

DANNY CHAPMAN was relieved Layne Eadie escaped a serious injury after he was on the end of a horror tackle from Mark Okoye during Harlow Town's 2-1 victory over Merstham.

Okoye was sent off after 35 minutes for hacking down Eadie with a high and late tackle on the halfway line.

It proved a pivotal moment as the Hawks took the lead just five minutes later through Lawrence Yiga, and Mario Noto netted their winner ten minutes from time, Merstham's consolation came in the 89th minute.

Chapman was pleased the defender had managed to lift his leg off the floor before contact was made.

"It was a bad tackle but I think Layne has managed to lift himself off the floor before it came in," explained the manager.

Planted

"If Layne's leg stays planted when the player comes through then it could have been a hell of a lot worse than it was.

"Sometimes it can be harder to play against ten men and the first half hour had been pretty even.

"I thought we had a good work rate about us and a good intent. We were a little bit sloppy in possession and kept giving the ball back too easily.

"We pretty much dominated the second half, albeit we didn't create a massive amount of chances, but we always looked in control of the game."

There were two changes to the side that lost 5-2 at Leiston on Saturday, with Khale Da Costa and Noto replacing Jared Small and Fabion Simms.

Harlow keeper David Hughes had to be alert early on to deny Kershane Samuels after a neat through ball from Dan Bennett.

Bennett also fired wide of Hughes' left-hand post from 12-yards out, after good work from Dan Hector on the right.

Da Costa then stole the ball off the Merstham centre-backs and squared it for Alex Read, but the prolific striker scooped the ball over from just six yards out.

Okoye saw red for his tackle and the Hawks made their extra man count shortly after.

Merstham again tried to play the ball out from the back, but Da

Costa pounced on a loose pass and fed Yiga, who took one touch before finding the bottom corner.

The Hawks missed numerous chances to extend their lead in the second half.

Da Costa could not direct Eadie's cross on target, and Noto scuffed an effort wide from close range.

But with ten minutes to go they finally doubled their advantage.

Substitute Small beat his man before crossing across the face of goal where Noto slid in and converted from just two yards out.

The visitors never gave up, however, and pulled a goal back in the 89th minute. Tutu Henriques found himself unmarked at the back post to head past Hughes.

There were four minutes of added-on time, but Harlow held on comfortably and picked up the three points.

After last Tuesday's defeat to Needham Market, Harlow suffered more pain on their travels with a 5-2 defeat at Leiston on Saturday.

Small gave the Hawks an early lead, but Leiston scored twice before the break, and then added to their tally three times after before Ryan Melaugh's consolation goal late on.

Dramatic win for Leopards

BASKETBALL: Levett Essex Leopards head into the Christmas break on a high after a thrilling 87-86 victory against Lancashire Spinners, on Sunday. The Big Cats overcame a slow start and cut an early ten-point deficit to trail only 24-21 at the first break, but they were 50-38 down at half-time.

There was little sign of a comeback until three minutes before the end of the third period when AJ Robert launched a 10-2 run, and a Darrell Bethune lay-up cut the deficit to 67-65 at the final break.

Mark Rangeley put Spinners ahead by one going into the final play, but Tosin Oyelese sunk a shot from just inside the foul line to give Leopards the win.

Quartet are Herts champions

Table tennis

FOUR players from BATTs Table Tennis Club were crowned county table tennis champions at the Level 3 Herts School Games, representing The Bishop's Stortford High School.

Finley Cameron-Prior (13, Year 9), Charlie Read (14, Year 9), Kamran Virdee (13, Year 9) and Alexander Howard (12, Year 8) represented the Birchwood Sports Partnership (BSP) in the boys' U16 competition.

Eleven secondary schools from all over Hertfordshire competed at the event in Watford, with four students in each team representing their respective sports partnerships.

They successfully got through the first round against four schools, with victory in each taking them into the semi-finals match.

They cruised through that contest with a 7-1 win against Townsend School, St Albans, which took them into the finals.

A successful 6-2 win against Hitchin Boys' School in the final claimed the overall title for them as Hertfordshire county champions, capping off a real team effort, with all the boys playing at their best.

The team train three times a week at BATTs and their passion for the sport spurred them on to organise a team from The Bishop's Stortford High School to represent the Birchwood Sports Partnership.

Neil Brierley from BATTs supported the students throughout the tournament.

Finley, Charlie, Kamran and Alexander will go through to represent the Birchwood Sports Partnership in the Zone Finals, which take place on Sunday, January 15 in Tower Hamlets.

BATTs, based in Harlow, who have former number one England junior Peter Clemenston in their coaching staff, welcomes new members. See www.batts.org.uk for details.

Chapman is hoping for a late present

Hawks boss wants three points on Boxing Day

By Matt Storey
matt.storey@hertsexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Town had gone 12 games unbeaten in all competitions before defeats at Needham Market last Tuesday and Leiston on Saturday, but Danny Chapman is confident his side can produce a similar run over Christmas and the New Year period.

The Hawks picked up their eighth home win from ten Ryman Premier League games on Tuesday evening, beating ten-men Merstham 2-1 thanks to goals from Lawrence Yiga and Mario Noto.

They now sit ninth in the table and are just five points outside the play-off spots.

After they went on a poor run of form two months ago, winning just once in nine games, Chapman was aware of the importance of the Merstham result.

"The most important thing was the result," admitted Chapman.

"Obviously you want the performance to go with that, but the main thing was to make sure we didn't get caught up in that bad run that we had a couple of months ago.

"It was important to break that sequence, and fair play to the boys, that was what we asked for and that is what we got.

"We can go into Christmas looking in the right direction now."

Chapman has spoken about the unpredictable nature of the league this year and the Hawks travel to Enfield Town on Boxing Day, before hosting Leatherhead on New Year's Eve and Canvey Island on January 2.

But the boss does not believe a good, or bad, Christmas period will determine whether the Hawks challenge for the play-offs, or have to settle for a mid-table finish come the end of the season.

He explained: "Usually, in most years, I would say that it can shape your season, but this league is just so up and down with everyone beating everyone.

"You might not have the best Christmas period but then you win three games in January and all of a sudden you're back in the mix again.

"I think it's important for us as a group more than anything.

"We had that good run, then we had two defeats, but if we can go and have a good three games over the Christmas and New Year period then that should put us in good stead going forward."

Best

Merstham had a man sent off on Tuesday night, but it was not until the 79th minute that Noto scored and gave the Hawks a two-goal advantage. Chapman does not believe his side were at their best in the game.

He added: "We did OK, we got the win, but I still think there is more to us than what we showed.

"We always try to press high and we succeeded in doing that.

"The goalkeeper then has to start kicking longer which gives you more opportunity to win the ball back and that was the plan."

The Harlow boss believes that the team owed the supporters a big performance after the weekend's disappointment.

"Leiston are another team that liked to play out from the back and we stopped that from happening, but we let ourselves down on Saturday and we let the supporters down as well."

Wing wonder Khale loving life at Town

KHALE DA COSTA notched up another assist for Harlow Town in their 2-1 victory over Merstham on Tuesday night.

The winger signed for the Hawks two months ago, and has been in red hot form ever since scoring four times in ten games.

It may surprise those who have seen him in the red and white of Harlow that, by his own admission, he was struggling for form at the start of the season.

He said: "I was not in the best of form before I joined to be honest.

"I played against Harlow for Hendon [in the 2-2 draw on September 22] and luckily I played a good game and the manager liked what he saw.

"It has been great. Everyone has helped me out, the gaffer's [Danny Chapman] got my back and everyone has welcomed me in, so I'm just enjoying my football so far."

And he was quick to praise his team-mates for helping him to hit the ground running and turn his form around.

"It's the people I'm playing with and just hard work," added the winger.

"I'm staying behind after training, putting extra effort in and doing the bits that make the difference on the pitch.

"Down the right flank with Craig Pope or Mario Noto, they support me and they're good partnerships down the wing."

After bouncing back from two successive league defeats on Tuesday night, Da Costa echoed his manager's belief that they can go on another unbeaten streak, similar to the 12 game run they were on before last Tuesday's defeat.

"We're confident enough to go back on another run like that," he added.

"We've got the quality and we can play, we're all positive about doing that and there is a real belief."

The Hawks have three games over the Christmas and New Year period and Da Costa admitted that life as a footballer is tough at this time of year.

"It's always difficult, you want to stuff your face, but you've got to work through it. Football comes first, definitely."

Harlow stay top of tree

RUGBY: Harlow confirmed their place at the top of London Three North East with a convincing 46-20 win over Stowmarket.

Jack Christie, Ross Stalley and Danny Smith helped them into a 22-8 lead at the break.

Kain Claridge crossed soon after half-time, but the visitors hit back with two tries of their own to make it 29-20.

Alfie Clark, Danny Fitzgerald and Stalley all crossed the whitewash in the final stages to confirm Harlow's 26 point win.

WINNER: Mario Noto netted Harlow's second goal in the 2-1 win on Tuesday night
